UC African Studies Common Knowledge Group Charter

1. Summary and Scope of Work
The focus of this CKG is the body of resources that supports the study of and teaching about Africa, primarily in the humanities, social sciences and arts, but not excluding entirely the sciences, law and business. Members of this CKG are those UC Libraries staff members whose job responsibilities include collection development and management of African studies resources or related user services.

This CKG communicates with and provides expert subject support to the UC Libraries Advisory Structure but does not make system-wide policy decisions, manage projects or project teams, or oversee ongoing services.

The African Studies CKG facilitates communication amongst librarians and archivists with responsibility for African studies to help coordinate collaborative evaluation, purchasing, and licensing of current and emerging forms of resources needed to support scholarship and teaching relating to Africa and its global diaspora – excluding the Americas – at the UC.
